Spring finds a way

Memorial Day is May 25; planning underway

By Jim Huebner

Memorial Day will be observed on Monday, May 25, with a traditional parade and memorial ceremonies. This is an opportunity for the community to come together in reemembrance of those who have died serving our nation.

The parade begins at 9 a.m., and will be held unless it is raining. Parade participants are asked to gather on Route 77 at 8:30 a.m.
The parade route begins at the intersection of Fowler Road and Old Ocean House Road,

Proposed land use changes sent to workshop as council hears concerns

By Bob Dodd

In response to the 2007 Comprehensive Plan, the Planning Board has recommended changes in the town’s land use regulations.
Many of the changes are intended to preserve open space and make housing more affordable, in keeping, the board felt, with the recommendations contained in the comprehensive plan.

Some residents strongly disagreed with certain changes proposed, especially the loosening of restrictions on new multifamily housing development, and they made their feelings known at the April 6 meeting of the council.

After hearing their concerns, the Town Council voted unanimously to send the proposed changes to workshop for discussion, rather than immediately to the Ordinance Committee for review. Councilors generally agreed that the objections raised warranted a workshop discussion before taking any further action.

School board adopts $23,647,188 budget

By Wendy Keefer

The School Board on April 14 unanimously adopted a $23,647,188 school budget for next year. Under the plan, which would increase school spending by 1.8 percent over this year, the tax rate for school services would go up 6 percent.

School taxes would increase from $12.19 to $12.26 for every thousand dollars of assessed valuation. On a home valued at $314,000, the projected property taxes for education would increase by $21.98.

The School Board will present the budget to the Town Council at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 27, in the Town Council Chamber.
The council is expected to vote on the adoption of an overall municipal budget after a public hearing on the budget on Monday, May 1, at the Town Hall.

A citizens’ vote on the Town Council’s adopted school budget is set for Tuesday, June 9, in the Cape Elizabeth High School gym.
The Maine Department of Education has projected a $447,150, or 17.7 percent, increase in state education aid to Cape Elizabeth next year, but that figure could change after the Legislature votes on a final budget.

Salaries and benefits represent about 80 percent of overall expenditures in the proposed school budget.

Medical insurance premiums

About a week before the April 14 meeting, school officials got the good news from the School Department’s insurance carrier that medical premiums for the upcoming year will go down 2 percent instead of rising 5 percent, as Cape Elizabeth school officials had anticipated. The change means a differce of $143,000.

At the April 14 business meeting, where five Cape Elizabeth residents expressed concern about class sizes in two grades next year, the board unanimously approved adding $50,000 to the $180,000 in contingency funds that already had been budgeted for next year.

If additional students register this summer for fourth or fifth grade, where classroom sizes are expected to be large, the board could vote to use contingency funds to hire additional staff, board members said.

Early in the meeting, School Board Finance Committee Chair Michael Moore

Few residents weigh in so far on long-term planning for Recycling Center, to be completed in June

By Elizabeth Brogan

Cape Elizabeth residents, at least those five who attended a public forum held April 9, hosted by the Solid Waste and Recycling Long-Range Planning Committee, like the new traffic pattern at the Recycling Center, although they would like drivers to slow down to the 15 m.p.h. speed limit. They also like the swap shop, bottle shed, and recycling bullets at Town Hall, are not in favor of curbside pickup, and would like an additional hazardous waste collection day.

Although only five residents attended the forum, not including members of the Solid Waste and Recycling Long-Range Planning Committee and the invited-to-participate Recycling Committee, Committee Chair and Town Councillor Jessica Sullivan still thought the forum went well. “The five residents had a lot of comments to make,” she said in an April 10 interview.

Discussion at the forum started with the ew traffic pattern, which replaced the need for vehicles to back up into the compactor building with four diagonal drop-off lanes and town-provided carts. The new diagonal parking system, in which vehicles only drive forward, is consistent with recommendations made by the engineering firm of Woodward and Curran. The town requested an assessment and recommendation from the firm following a fatal accident on Nov. 24 in which Herbert Dennison was struck and thrown into the compactor by a Ford Explorer backing and is also available online at the town website. The survey deadline is May 8.

The Solid Waste and Recycling Long-Range Planning Committee has been meeting since January and is charged with providing a completed report to the Town Council by June 30. “I believe we are on track to do that,” said Sullivan.
Proposed ordinance change is ‘unnecessary’

There are some proposed changes now being considered by the Planning Board. These changes could have drastic and long-lasting implications on the look, feel and overall character of Cape Elizabeth. Right now the Planning Board is considering proposed ordinance changes that would allow for five-story, multiplex units on any land parcel over 3 acres – not just in the Town Center but on any parcel over three acres.

Currently our town population is decreasing and is projected to continue to do so. In addition it has been made very clear time and again that Cape residents highly value the rural character of our town and our open green space.

This type of development is not only unnecessary and of benefit to only a small few but goes so strongly against what a majority of our residents want.

Please take the time to familiarize yourself with what the Planning Board is proposing to do. If we as a community do not speak up, our town’s rural character, what we so highly cherish, could be changed forever.

Lisa Gent

Land use proposal would ‘erode’ town character

I am deeply concerned about the proposal for land use amendment and zoning ordinance changes to accommodate multiplex development in our community.

Of particular concern is the increase from 3- to 5-story (50 feet) multiplex buildings, to be more than 55 percent produced from a 5-acre minimum.

This type of development, whether it be in our town center or any neighborhood with a 3-acre lot or larger, does not align with Cape’s aesthetic. This lossening of Cape’s building restrictions will forever erode the charming character of our town.

Imagine four buildings, each five stories high, on the wooded lot next to Town Hall, or in a charming residential neighborhood.

The proposed changes are far-reaching and unnecessary. Is there actually a demand for multiplex housing in Cape? From whom?

Rep. Monaghan stands against animal cruelty

I am writing to express thanks and gratitude to our State Representative Kimberly Monaghan for taking a strong stand against animal cruelty. Rep. Monaghan is the lead sponsor of legislation (LD 335) that seeks to prohibit pet shops in Maine from buying and selling puppies and kittens from large-scale, out-of-state commercial breeding facilities known as puppy mills.

The lack of care at these breeding facilities is inhumane, and it contributes to a high rate of contagious parasites, diseases, and behavioral disorders in the young animals sold by Maine pet shops are obtained continuously and kept in cramped, filthy cages, never groomed, never feeling a loving human touch.

The bill is being considered by the Committee on Agriculture, Forestry and Conservation. Let’s hope it becomes law, but know that even if it does not, it has received a great deal of attention in the press and has raised awareness throughout Maine of the critical importance of purchasing pets only from area shelters, rescue groups, or reputable local breeders.

Please join me in thanking Rep. Monaghan for sponsoring this important legislation.

April Fool’s Day story highlights real issues

Debbie Butterworth got me.

I am a long time advocate for pedestrian scale, sustainable development. But when I got to the part in Debbie’s mock article on page 4 in the March 25 issue of The Courier, about the Town Hall being moved to a “municipal campus,” I was ready to dig up the hatchet and start a crusade. Truthfully, we could use more retail, affordable housing and a small art-house movie/vaudeville theater.

Cape Elizabeth does have a walkable downtown, and we should promote and develop accordingly. Despite its purportedly snooty character, our town actually has a great income range among its residents, historically a strength of our community. A mixed-use downtown sounds exciting too.

One of the things we have done well as a municipality is maintain the historical character of the town. It feels rural yet has a thriving Town Center, though it is a satellite community to Portland. As we develop the downtown, we need to do so carefully and maintain local and popular control of development. Sadly, there are too many nearby examples of urban renewal and privatization run amok. While Debbie’s story is tongue in cheek, she touches on real danger to our community faces. Bravo for alerting us and making the article believable and subtle.

Reader puzzled by ‘daily dumping’ of waste on Shore Road

I live just off Shore Road and for the last month and a half or so someone has been daily dumping a bag of what looks to be filled with oatmeal (or voniniti) in the middle of the road in the vicinity of Saint Alban’s Church.

I stopped to talk with a couple of guys on the town road crew who have the unenviable task of cleaning this mess up. They think the Hannaford plastic bags contain what they poetically refer to as “medical waste,” speculating it might be the contents of a colostomy bag. It’s a mystery that makes me wonder what kind of grudge this colostomy bag bomber has against himself and his sister who also has a colostomy.

It’s almost strange to get this type of thing so close to the front yard of my house which is a three-acre lot – not just in the Town Center but on any parcel over three acres.

In addition it has been made very clear time and again that Cape residents highly value the rural character of our town and our open green space.

This type of development is not only unnecessary and of benefit to only a small few but goes so strongly against what a majority of our residents want.

Sunday yard waste disposal starts April 26

The Recycling Center will be open for the disposal of leaves, yard wastes and recyclables from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the following Sundays: April 26, May 3, May 10 and May 17. Household refuse will not be accepted at the compactor on these days. Fees will be assessed on all applicable items.

Hazardous and e-waste collection May 9

A household hazardous and e-waste collection will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on May 9 at the public works building on Cooper Drive, below the Recycling Center. Cape Elizabeth residents displaying a valid permit may drop hazardous items from the yard, garage, house and workbench.

To see specific acceptable items – and unacceptable items – visit the town website or review the insert in this newspaper.

Memorial Day

continues north on Route 77, taking a left onto Scott Dyer Road ending at the War Veteran’s Memorial where a wreath will be laid.

The parade will include members of the Cape Elizabeth Police, Fire and Rescue Departments, the WETeam, Lions’ Club, Middle School Marching Band, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Brownies. This year we will also have “legacy families” (defined as those families with roots going back 100 years) marching in the parade as part of 250th anniversary of Cape Elizabeth’s founding. Veterans of previous wars, as well as active-duty personnel, are invited to march.

We encourage anyone who has a family member serving in the armed services to notify Jim Huebener at 767-1754 or 831-3625, or at jhuebene@maine.net, so they can be recognized.

Groups interested in marching, other than those mentioned above, should contact Jim Huebener as soon as possible so they can be included.

The 2015 Memorial Day parade marshal is Sgt. Tiana Schneider, a veteran of the Iraq War who is still on active duty and stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. She is a Cape Elizabeth native and 2003 graduate of Cape Elizabeth High School.

Following the ceremony, residents and guests are invited to an open house reception at the Town Center Fire Station.

Publisher position opens at Cape Courier

The Cape Courier is accepting applications for the position of publisher, as current publisher, and longtime Courier volunteer, Diane Brakeny, is planning her departure.

The position requires 10-15 mostly flexible hours per week, with plenty of vacation time, generally coinciding with school calendar vacations. The Cape Courier is published 22 times per year.

Applicants must be proficient with Adobe Indesign and familiar with Micro-soft Word and Excel. Newspaper or other publication experience is preferred but not required. This is a managerial position and candidates should also be comfortable working with technology, as the newspaper is created and sent to the printer digitally.

Please send resume and cover letter to info@capecourier.com by the end of April.

May brings flowers!

By Erika Carlson Rhile, Cape Elizabeth Land Trust Education Committee chair

May 1: “May Day” is the midpoint between the vernal equinox and the summer solstice.

May 4: Full Flower Moon, is named for abundant May flowers!

Stop and smell the flowers. Purple trillium smells like rotten meat to attract flies for its pollination. It was once used medicinally to treat gangrene and nosebleeds. Other wildflowers in bloom are wormwood, yellow bellies, and pink lady slippers.

Quaker ladies (“bluets”), wood sorrel, bunchberry, starflower, fringed polygalas and pink lady slippers.

The early robin gets the worm? Adult robins prefer fruit over earthworms; the worms are for their babies.

Black flies are back — did you know they have been around since the Jurassic Period?

Newborn fawns are walking at an hour old.

Winnick Woods assessed for dog impact

By Maureen O’Meara, Town Planner

Dog owners recently asked the Cape Elizabeth Conservation Commission to review its management policies at Winnick Woods and the impact of use by dog owners. The dog owners want to proactively address potential negative impacts of increased use of Winnick Woods following new dog leash rules at Robinson Woods.

The Conservation Commission welcomes this approach. Using a model of jointly reviewing trail impacts and the needs of users, the Conservation Commission has built working relationships with the mountain-biking- and horseback riding-greenbelt users. Greenbelt trail improvements have been made by both groups in cooperation with the Conservation Commission, resulting in a better trail system for all users. More importantly, the relationship built with user groups provides feedback and a method for addressing issues as they arise.

Dog use on the greenbelt

In preparation for the discussion with dog owners, staff walked the main Winnick Woods trail loop on March 9. As a control, staff also walked the outer trail loop at Gull Crest on March 10. A summary of conditions was prepared and shared with the dog owners. Generally, the summary of conditions found that dog owners on greenbelt trails had both beneficial and negative impacts.

Along the first one-third mile of trail, pet waste can be found an average of every 50 feet for both trails. A pet waste station is available at Gull Crest, but not at Winnick Woods. In Winnick Woods, there are many instances of dogs leaving the trail to romp in the woods. This is not common at Gull Crest. Staff observed about half of dog owners at Winnick Woods leaving the trail carrying a waste bag. During the survey, staff experienced dogs jumping, and lunging in a menacing way. Many other dog owners were careful to avoid conflicts with other trail users.

The trails at Winnick Woods are well packed down. Trails at Gull Crest are less packed and are heavily used not only by dog walkers but also for cross-country skiing, snowshoeing and snowmobiling.

Going forward

The Conservation Commission discussed and agreed to installation of a pet waste station, with dog waste bags and a trash can, at Winnick Woods. The commission will install the station, which has been generously donated by Maine Veterinary Referral Center of Scarborough, along with a month’s supply of bags.

The commission also agreed to install signage encouraging dog owners to pick up after their pets. The dog owners’ stakeholder group provided several samples of signs, some of which have since been installed at Winnick Woods and Gull Crest.

The commission will educate the public about best practices; both responsible pet waste disposal and courtesy to fellow trail users.

What trail users should know

All pet waste should be collected and disposed of in a waste container. Pet waste left in the open does not harmlessly degrade. The Environmental Protection Agency classifies pet waste as “toxic.” The U.S. Centers for Disease Control confirms that pet waste can spread parasites, including hookworm, tapeworm and salmonella. Even after pet waste degrades, parasite eggs can linger for years. Very small amounts of pet waste includes millions of fecal coliform bacteria. This can seep into groundwater and spread salmonella and giardia. Pet waste is a major contributor to stormwater pollution. Pet waste left in the open is carried by rainwater into storm drains and from there into streams, rivers and lakes. To protect the health of the public and their pets, pet waste should always be left in a waste container.

Pet owners should always have their pet under control when using the greenbelt. The Cape Elizabeth greenbelt is a multiuser trail system. All users should be respectful and courteous of each other. When enjoying greenbelt trails, assume other trail users do not want a dog to jump on them or to approach them in a menacing way. If your dog becomes excited when encountering other trail users, restrain your dog until the user has passed by.

Ongoing management

The Conservation Commission is the steward of the greenbelt system and will continue to monitor use of greenbelt trails consistent with the Open Space Management Ordinance and policies adopted by the Town Council. The commission will continue to work with stakeholder groups, but will also take necessary steps to curb abuse of the greenbelt trail system.
Criminals host fake websites to get info, money

The Cape Elizabeth Police Department has taken numerous reports this year of fraudulent tax returns filed in the names of residents. In response, the department has published an alert from the Federal Bureau of Investigation explaining how the fraud is perpetrated and what people can do to avoid becoming a victim of this growing crime.

The following is a summary of the FBI alert. The full text of the alert can be read on the town website.

According to the FBI’s Internet Crime Complaint Center criminals host fraudulent government services websites in order to acquire personal information and to collect fraudulent fees from consumers.

The scam begins when a victim uses a search engine to find government services. The fraudulent websites are the first to appear. Such websites may include forms which ask for personal information and usually request a fee. Once paid, the victim may be requested to send other documentation, such as a birth certificate or driver’s license. By the time the victim realizes it is a scam they may have found extra charges billed to their credit or debit card, had a third-party desigee added to their EIN card, and had their personal data compromised. Requested personal information might include the victim’s name, address, phone number, email address, social security number, date of birth and mother’s maiden name. This information may then be used to create fraudulent IDs, passports, loans and tax refunds.

When looking for government websites always look for the .gov domain instead of .com. Be cautious when surfing the Internet or responding to advertisements and special offers. Research any services you plan to use. Be especially cautious when dealing with persons or companies outside of the U.S. and maintain records of all online transactions.

April 22, 1865 – The assassination of President Lincoln, throughout our State, has turned the general rejoicing over our last victories into the deepest gloom and sadness. Everywhere the grief of the people for the loss of this great and good man has turned the general rejoicing over our last victories into the deepest gloom and sadness. Everywhere the Union armies are destroying the last vestiges of the military power of the rebellion. Mobile, the last important port of the rebels, has fallen into our hands. Many citizens are anxious to take the oath of allegiance, and are glad to be released from rebel rule.

The following are the obsequies for President Lincoln to be observed in the City Hall, and a funeral discourse by Rev. Dr. Carruthers. Mayor McLellan has issued a proclamation to the effect, and requesting that all flags be displayed at half mast. [Portland Transcript]

Gen. Ord purchased the table on which the terms of surrender were signed by Generals Grant and Lee for $50, and Gen. Custer purchased that on which the minutes were made out for $25. The former was a marble topped table of antiquated fashion. [Portland Transcript]

Grant’s last campaign in Virginia is one of the most rapid and brilliant known in history. The capture of Petersburg and Richmond, and the pursuit and capture of Lee’s army, occupied just eleven days! [Portland Transcript]

Booth, the assassin, is at large. And so is Jeff Davis. [Portland Transcript]

Gen. Lee keeps quietly in his house at Richmond, and has not been seen on the street since his capture.

The mother of Booth, the assassin, resides in New York, and is said to be nearly insane under the great calamity that has come so suddenly upon her. [Portland Transcript]

The assassination of the President created great consternation in Richmond, the people expressing their fears of the consequences.

The following are the obsequies for President Lincoln to be observed in this city on Wednesday, the day of his funeral. All the churches to be opened for religious services from 12 to 1; all business to be suspended after 12 o’clock; the bells to be tolled and minute guns fired at 3 o’clock, P.M., a meeting in the City Hall, and a funeral discourse by Rev. Dr. Carruthers. Mayor McLellan has issued a proclamation to the effect, and requesting that all flags be displayed at half mast. [Portland Transcript]

Nineteenth-century stonecutter to be topic of May 2 Genealogical Society presentation

Nineteenth-century Portland stonecutter Bartlet Adams, whose shop produced hundreds of slate and marble gravestones for graveyards in Cumberland County and beyond, will be the topic of a one-hour presentation on Saturday, May 2, at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 29 Ocean House Road.

Ray Romano will lead the talk at the meeting of the Greater Portland Chapter of the Maine Genealogical Society, which will begin at 1 p.m., following a half-hour refreshment time. Romano leads tours of the Eastern Cemetery, the oldest historic landscape in Portland, and is a member of the board of Spirits Alive, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the cemetery. In 2013 and 2014, Romano conducted a survey of Adams’ work, visiting more than 175 early cemeteries to document his impact on the region. The event will be free, and new members are welcome to join the society. Go to www.gpcmgs.org for more information.

A Cape Elizabeth High School student jazz group will perform from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday, May 8, at The Local Buzz café and wine bar, 327 Ocean House Road.

There will be no charge for the event, but donations will be accepted. Proceeds will help offset costs for the CEHS mock trial Day Fireworks, 320 Ocean House Road, Cape Elizabeth ME 04107.”

Parade

This year’s parade on Shore Road, which will start at 10 a.m., will include Scarborough’s Gym Dandies Unicycle Troupe. The fun run, which will not be a competition, will include an obstacle course with inflated beach balls and giant inflatable animals and an area where a cannon will shoot nontoxic foam into air. Children younger than eight will need to be accompanied by an older sibling or an adult, Pride said.

As always, the committee invites artists and craftspeople to reserve free booths to show and sell handmade items. Contact , Rose Keanealy at keannealo@spsd.org about renting a booth.

Family Fun Day may include first fireworks since 2007 along with new fun run with foam

By

If organizers have their way, this year’s Family Fun Day, set for Saturday, June 13, at Fort Williams Park, will be the “biggest and best Cape Elizabeth Family Fun Day ever.”

Family Fun Day Committee Co-chair about the event, which has a June 14 rain date.

Fireworks?

If committee members are able to raise adequate funding, Family Fun Day will end on a bang with fireworks over the fort for the first time since 2007. The Town Council on April 6 unanimously approved a request by the Family Fun Day committee to raise funds for a fireworks display.

“If we can raise $3,000, we can have fireworks, and if we raise more than that, then we will have a bigger fireworks show,” Pride said.

Everyone who donates will earn a chance to be the person who gets to push the button that sends off the first barrage of fireworks over Fort Williams, Pride said.

Donation checks should be made out to “Town of Cape Elizabeth,” marked “For fireworks,” and mailed to “C.E. Family Fun Day Fireworks, 320 Ocean House Road, Cape Elizabeth ME 04107.”

Prizes will be offered.

Fun Run with Finishing Touch

In addition to some of the traditional Family Fun Day offerings – foods and treats prepared by nonprofits and a free dog show – this year’s event will include a free afternoon concert by the Don Campbell Band, a free all-day petting zoo, a free Mad Science Show at 3:15 p.m., and a free Fun Run with a Finishing Touch at 4 p.m.

The fun run, which will not be a competition, will include an obstacle course with inflated beach balls and giant inflatable animals and an area where a cannon will shoot nontoxic foam into air. Children younger than eight will need to be accompanied by an older sibling or an adult, Pride said.

‘A Funny Thing’ to run through May 2 at Lyric

The musical, “A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum,” will run through Saturday, May 2, at Lyric Music Theater in South Portland. The comedy, set in Rome, tells the story of a slave and his attempts to win freedom by helping his young master woo the girl next door.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets are $21.99 and $17.99 for senior citizens 65 and older.

The theater is located at 176 Sawyer St. Call 799-1421, email ticketslyric@gmail.com, or go to lyricmusictheater.org for tickets.
In honor of National Poetry Month, three area poets will read from their own works from 4 to 5 p.m. Saturday, April 25, at The Local Buzz Cafe on the corner of Two Lights and Wheeler roads. The event, “Poetry’s Legacy,” area poets Betsy Sholl, Adrian Blevins and Christopher Robley will present examples of poetry that has inspired their own work and share poems they created from that inspiration.

The event is part of the Local Writers at The Local Buzz group’s monthly series co-hosted by Portland Poet Laureate and Cape Elizabeth resident Marcia F. Brown and poet Linda Aldrich. Sholl, the former Poet Laureate for the state of Maine, has published eight collections of poetry, including “Otherwise Unseeable,” published in 2014 by the University of Wisconsin Press; “Rough Cradle,” published in 2009 by Alice James Books; and “Late Psalm,” published in 2004 by the University of Wisconsin. Her work is included in “Best American Poetry 2009,” in “Best Spiritual Writing 2012,” and in many magazines. She is a founding member of Alice James Books and has received National Endowment for the Arts and Maine Writer’s fellowships. Sholl has taught at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge and the University of Southern Maine in Gorham, and now teaches in the graduate writing program at Vermont College of Fine Arts in Montpelier.

Migratory birds will be the topic of a walk that bird enthusiast and Cape Elizabeth resident Rafael Adams will lead between 6:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 25, at Bowery Beach Schoolhouse, located at the intersection of Two Lights and Wheeler roads. “This is peak warbler migration time for a safer home or business,” he said. Participants should wear footwear suitable for wet conditions. The cost of the program, which is sponsored by the Cape Elizabeth Land Trust, is $5 per person. Register at least 48 hours in advance through Community Services by going to capecommunityservices.org and clicking on the link to ActiveNet, or in person at 343 Ocean House Road. Lindsay and Puppet Pals will perform April 24

The library will offer a special family event for all ages featuring Lindsay and Her Puppet Pals at 11 a.m. on Friday, April 24.

"Puppeteer Lindsay Bezich will bring her lovingly crafted, giant hand puppets and marionettes for a show filled with silliness, crowd participation, and unique, memorable characters," says Children’s Librarian Rachel Davis. Lindsay and Her Puppet Pals performed at the library several years ago to rave reviews." This year, due to space limitations in the library’s temporary space, the program will take place in the activity room at the Community Center.

The program is free and no advanced registration is required.

Special programs offered during vacation week

Regular story times will be suspended during the week of April 20 – 25 to make way for some special programs for children and families. Rick Lepage and Kiah Gardner will offer four different craft programs during the week of April 20 – 25 to make garbage bags for beach cleaning.

The Inn will provide gloves and fresh cookies.

Enjoy a special short talk from the Gulf of Maine Research Institute about fishery management in the Gulf of Maine and their underutilized seafood program, then head to the beach.

The Inn will provide gloves and garbage bags for beach cleaning.

Read-to-a-dog now Tuesday instead of Thursday

Beginning the week after April school vacation, Maddie, the library’s black lab therapy dog, will begin meeting with children on Tuesdays instead of Thursdays from 3:30 to 5:15 p.m. It is hoped that the change will allow more children to register, as Thursday afternoons seem to be difficult for many families. Maddie’s first Tuesday will be April 28.

Winston, the library’s Golden Retriever, will continue to meet with children on Wednesday afternoons from 3:15 to 5 p.m.

Children interested in reading to one of the dogs must be registered in advance. Registration can be done in person, on the phone, or online through the library’s website.

New science fiction book group to meet April 28

The library’s new Science Fiction & Fantasy Book Group will meet on Tuesday, April 28 to discuss "Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?" by Philip K. Dick (the book upon which the movie "Blade Runner," starring Harrison Ford, was based.) This discussion had been postponed from last month. At the April meeting, the group will likely decide what book to read next. If you are interested in participating in the discussion, please contact Adrian Alexander at aalexander@thomas.lib.me.us.

Jud Caswell’s musical story hour set for May 7; story time schedule continues through spring

Jud Caswell will return for Musical Story Hour from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. on Thursday, May 7. Caswell sings songs, plays interactive musical games, and provides original accompaniment to stories read aloud. All are welcome!

The library’s regular story time schedule continues as follows:

- Baby Time, for birth to 18 months Wednesdays at 11 a.m. with Rachel
- Toddler Time, for 18 months to 3 years Mondays at 10:30 a.m. with Kiah
- Preschool Time, for ages 3 to 5 Tuesdays at 9:30 a.m. with Rachel
- Family Story Time, for all ages Saturdays at 10:30 a.m. with Rachel
- Stay & Play, for all ages Daily after the last story time, until 2 p.m.

Starting the day with a poem

Pond Cove first graders, from left, Vivian Schultzel, Isabella Guerin-Brown and Annabelle Clason read poems in early April during the school’s “Poem in Your Pocket Week.” “We passed out poems to students when they entered school each day in honor of National Poetry Month,” Pond Cove School Principal Kelly Hasson said. “Most children read their poems right away as they walked to class and shared them with their friends.”

Parents of nearly 70 percent of CEHS juniors opt to have children skip April 11 testing

By Wendy Keeler

Sixty-eight percent of Cape Elizabeth High School’s 152 juniors skipped Maine Educational Assessment testing the morning of Saturday, April 11, because their parents were “philosophically opposed” to them taking the test, CEHS Principal Jeffrey Shedd said.

Parents of 103 Cape 11th-graders opted to have their children stay home that morning instead of taking the new MEA, developed by the Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium to align with the federal government’s Common Core public school standards. Five juniors were excused from the test for other personal reasons. Forty-four took the test, which ran about three and a half hours, Shedd said.

“Most parents [who opted to have their children skip the test] expressed something along the lines that they were philosophically opposed to having their children use their time to take a test that essentially doesn’t count for them,” Shedd said. “Basically, a lot of parents said that right now is a huge testing window for juniors, and they preferred to have them spend their time getting ready for [other] tests.”

Most parents who chose to have their children skip the test said “juniors were already tested out with SATs and APs and other exams that have a very significant impact on them, whereas they ... perceived the Smarter Balanced test as having no direct impact on them individually but taking a very long time,” Shedd said.

From 2006-2014, Maine high school juniors took the SAT, a college admission test, as their MEA. Students could send the scores to colleges.

The majority of U.S. colleges require applicants to take the SAT or another college admission test, the ACT. No longer administered at CEHS because it isn’t a state-mandated assessment test, the SAT was recently administered at other area high schools on

Cape Olympians compete at two meets

Cape Olympians have been busy this month. Athletes from all three Cape Elizabeth schools competed April 3 at the Special Olympics Cumberland County Swim Meet at the Richards Pool. The following day, Cape Olympians traveled to the University of Southern Maine in Gorham for the Special Olympics State Basketball tournament. Teams from all over the state competed in five-vs.-five-player games in both skills competitions and “unified” games. In unified sports, athletes with disabilities are paired with athletes who are not disabled. Cape’s unified team included Cape Olympians and players on CEMS and CEHS basketball teams.

The Cape Olympians finished fourth. Both skills and unified players practiced after school to prepare for the tournament.

Public supper at Cape Methodist on May 2

The Cape Elizabeth United Methodist Church will host a public supper on Saturday, May 2, from 4:30 to 6 p.m. The supper will feature casseroles, beans, salads and breads. As always, there will be pie for dessert. Prices will be $8 for adults, $5 for children and $20 for families—groups comprised of two adults and children. Take-out also will be available. The church is located at 280 Ocean House Road. Go to cemc.org for more information about the church and its events.

St. Alban’s plans July Bible school for children

St. Alban’s Episcopal Church’s will hold its annual children’s vacation Bible school Monday, July 13, through Friday, July 17. The day will run from 9 a.m. to noon.

The theme of this year’s camp, for four-year-olds through children who will enter fifth grade, is “Hometown Nazareth: Where Jesus was a Kid.”

“Children will step back in time, exploring what it was like to live in the town where Jesus grew up,” said Debbie Fisher, St. Alban’s religious education director. “Kids will participate in a memorable Bible-times marketplace, sing catchy songs, play teamwork-building games, visit Jesus’ mom, Mary, dig into Bible-times snacks, and collect ‘Bible memory-makers’ to remind them of God’s Word.”

The cost is $50 per child, and scholarships are available. Call Fisher at 799-4014 or go to stalbansmaine.org for information.

Cape Challenge 5K, fun run, dash on May 31

The Cape Challenge 5K is set for 9:30 a.m. on Sunday, May 31. The annual event, sponsored by Cape Chiropractic and Acupuncture and Mercy Cardiology, also includes an 8:30 a.m. “Fun Run” for children eight years old younger, and a 9 a.m. one includes an 8:30 a.m. “Fun Run” for children eight years old younger, and a 9 a.m. one.

The Cape Challenge 5K is 3.9 miles on a paved course open to all skill levels. It begins at 9:30 a.m., and the Fun Run begins at 8:30 a.m.

Players who will be seven years old by August 15, 2015, are eligible for the Fun Run. Participants register online at www.capewhitecaps.org.

Registration for the Cape Elizabeth Soccer Club’s fall 2015 season will run through Monday, May 4. Players who will be seven years old by August 15, 2015, are eligible for the Fall 2015 season. The Fall 2015 season will run through November 1.

Cape Elizabeth Soccer Club announces its fall season will run through Monday, May 4. Players will be seven years old by August 15, 2015, and they will play in the U8 age group. The fall 2015 season will run through November 1.

Cost for U7-U8 trickle may be $160 for SAE players or $180 for IIA players. There will be a $150 non-refundable commitment fee that covers the administration costs. There will be an additional $35 per player for the U8 and U7 players in the fall 2015 season.

Saturday, March 14, and will be again on Saturdays, May 2 and June 6. Some juniors will take it more than once this spring. Shedd estimates that half of CEHS students take the SAT more than once.

Additionally, some colleges also require SAT II, or SAT subject tests, which measure students’ learning in specific subject areas. SAT II tests will be offered in early June.

In early May, 50 to 60 percent of CEHS juniors will take at least one Advanced Placement test. AP exams are the culmination of year-long AP courses.

Preparation is required for AP tests, and most students also prepare for the SAT and for SAT subject tests.

Impact

Because the 2014-2015 school year is a pilot year in Maine for the Smarter Balanced assessment test, the low turnout of CEHS juniors will not have an effect on CEHS.

But a low turnout rate next year would have an impact.

“Next year might cause a state aid financial aid sanction, and it would definitely result in our being identified as a failing school under state and federal law,” Shedd said. “I am confident that if our parents and students know that, they will come! Having the experience this year will help us figure out the best way to schedule this and the realistic amount of time that will be required.”

O’Meara to review the 2-year public process, beginning in 2005, by which the Comprehensive Plan Committee developed its recommendations, and the process, began in 2013, by which the Planning Board formed its proposal for implementing the recommendations.

O’Meara said that at least a dozen Planning Board workshops were held and all were open to the public.

Walds also said that the “normal” process of sending the recommendations to the Ordinance Committee for review did not represent a “fait accompli” as some speakers seemed to indicate.

He said the committee could have made any number of recommendations, including that the proposed amendments be sent back to the Planning Board or be rejected by the council.

School budget

made a decision to “reinvest [the $143,000] that would have covered the higher insurance premium costs into staff to address two grades that have class sizes that are above the recommended size.”

Next year, fourths- and fifth-grade classrooms will have about 22 students, principals at Pond Cove School and Cape Elizabeth Middle School have projected. School Board guidelines recommend classes of 22 in grades 3 through 12.

Board members John Christie and David Hillman opposed the idea of hiring new staff now, saying that although anticipated class sizes in the two grades may be high, they are not outside School Board guidelines.

“What I would propose is we reduce the local allocation from taxpayers, and the reason for that is that the School Board ... has not defined either a cap or a floor on class sizes,” Christie said.

Given that fact, Hillman said that choosing to spend money to hire another teacher would be “basing our decision ... not on fact but on emotion. We’re paid the big bucks to make the tough decisions of balancing cost and needs,” said Hillman, adding that he knows of no studies that show differences in student learning between class sizes of 25 and 18.

School Board member Barbara Powers proposed putting some of the $143,000 into contingency so the district will have adequate funding to hire additional staff if more students enroll in coming months.

“I do think we do need to be prepared to protect those reasonable sizes going into next fall,” Powers said.

Moore amended his motion, proposing that $50,000 be added to contingency.

Hillman said he was “happy” with the motion.

“I have no problem increasing the contingency fund by a modest amount,” he said. “If we need teachers, then we get teachers. If we need something else, we get something else.”

The proposed school budget includes a 27 percent increase in the district’s mandated contribution to the state retirement system. The DOE informed Maine school officials earlier this year that districts will be required to pay a greater portion of employee retirement costs next year. The contribution rate will rise from 2.65 percent of eligible employees’ wages to 3.36 percent.

The debt service will go down by $496,246, the result of the retirement of one school bond and the refinancing of others. Capital improvement and maintenance will increase by $350,650, in line with the 10-year capital stewardship plan developed in 2013. Improvements will include water infiltration remediation for all three school buildings, electrical switchboard replacement at the high school and middle school, phone and intercom replacement at CEHS, and duct maintenance at all three schools.

Under the proposed budget, Pond Cove would lose a kindergarten teacher because of a projected decline in kindergarten enrollment from 100 to 88 students. The school would add one 10th-grade class in coming years.

The middle school would lose 10 teachers because of a sought enrollment decline in that grade from 134 to 112 students. Spending at CEHS not related to salaries would increase by a total $23,125. Of that, $16,128 would go to new math and science texts and to science kits and general control services.

Under the budget, the high school would spend an extra $13,545 next year on salaries with the addition of a one-10th time drama teacher and a one-10th time music teacher.

The high school budget not related to salaries would decrease by a total $26,702. Next year, CEHS won’t have to spend $60,000 on charter school tuition for Cape Elizabeth students, as the school did this year. The state would cover those tuitions.

Because CEHS will send a higher number of Cape students next year to the gional Portland Arts and Technology High School for career and technical education, the school will spend an additional $14,527 for PATHS.

Next year’s CEHS budget also includes $13,400 to cover lodging and food expenses related to the March 2016 visit to CEHS by a 15-member team of educators from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, the accrediting agency for secondary schools, colleges, and universities in New England.

Starting next year, the district will spend $15,000 for a one-fifth-time gifted and tal talent teacher and an extra $25,000 for salaries for teachers in the district’s Open Doors Studio summer school program. Launched last summer for students who demonstrated they are benefiting from summer exposure to math and literacy, the program would be expanded to include more students and lengthened from 12 to 16 days.

The budget increases the volunteer services director’s position from three-quarter time to full time. The new staff member would oversee extended education opportunities such as adult education programs.

A proposal to spend $50,000 on preschool programming, which had been included in February in the superintendent’s recommended budget but was eliminated this month, will be reconsidered during next year’s budget season.

Another proposal included in the superintendent’s recommended budget was a request to cut the special education director’s position to half time and have other staff members take over some of the duties. The district now has a full-time director of special education to replace Jane Golding, who retires next month.

The Community Services budget, which is separate from the school budget, includes spending of $1,798,139, a 6.4 percent increase over this year. The tax rate for Community Services would increase from 28 cents to 31 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation. In other action on April 14, the School Board adopted a 2015-2016 school year calendar setting Sept. 8, the day after Labor Day, as the first day back for school students.

Sharing assessor OK’d

The council voted unanimously to authorize Town Manager Mike McGovern to sign an agreement with Scarborough that would result in the sharing of Cape Elizabeth’s town assessor, Matt Sturgis.

Under the agreement, Sturgis would work three days per week for Cape Elizabeth and 2 days for Scarborough.

The agreement will save Cape Elizabeth about $34,000 in the coming year.

McGovern said Scarborough approached the town after one of its two assessors left to work for the city of Lewiston. He described the interlocal agreement as a “good fit for Cape Elizabeth.”

McGovern said the town was always looking for ways to collaborate with other towns on services. He said that the town now contracts with Portland for dispatch services and with South Portland for animal control services.

“This is the first interlocal agreement where we are providing the service,” said McGovern.

Public engagement process

Approved for paper street review

The Town Council has approved a public engangement process for input to help in making decisions relating to “paper streets” located outside town-owned property.

Paper streets are roads that were part of approved subdivisions and were never developed. Some have become popular pedestrian trails within neighborhoods and some have been the source of bitter controversy between neighbors.

The town’s rights to paper streets were extended for 20 years by the council in 1997. The extension expires in 2017, and the town now needs to consider its various options.

As part of the process for gathering public input, the council approved a three-part process of engagement.

For Part 1, the council has requested the Planning Board and the Conservation Commission to conduct a review of the 2015 Paper Street Report.

The council has directed the Conservation Commission to focus on the paper streets that “are or could be used as additions to the greenbelt.”

The Planning Board is directed to focus on the need for any of the paper streets “to support potential new development in an orderly manner.”

Parts 2 and 3 are intended to engage the public in the paper street discussion. Part 2 involves hosting four to six neighborhood meetings where paper streets will be one of several topics presented. The neighborhood meetings are viewed by the council as a pilot project for testing such meetings as opportunities for public engagement.

Part 3 of the process will involve a traditional public hearing on paper streets to be held during future Town Council meetings.

The town website will also be used extensively for posting information relating to the paper street review process.

John Calvin Stevens’ art and architecture in Cape Elizabeth topic of two May programs

Architectural works designed by John Calvin Stevens in Cape Elizabeth and paintings that Stevens did in town will be the topic of two free programs planned next month.

Maine state historian Earle Shettleworth, Jr., will present a talk about buildings designed by Stevens, who lived from 1855 to 1940. Shettleworth will also talk about paintings in Cape Elizabeth done in the 1920s. Shettleworth also did in town will be the “Brushuns.”

Three days later, on Saturday, May 16, Delano Park resident Bob Ayotte will lead a 10 a.m. walking tour of Delano Park. Ayotte will point out and discuss homes in Delano Park that Stevens designed.

People interested in going on the walking tour can register and get directions for parking from Ayotte at Shettleworth’s May 13 talk. People unable to attend the May 13 talk can reserve a spot on the walking tour through Community Services at 799-2868. Participation will be limited to 40 people.

The programs will coincide with an exhibition of Stevens’ paintings at the University of New England’s art gallery in Biddeford through July 19.

The Cape Elizabeth 250th Anniversary Committee is sponsoring the two programs. Go to capeelizabeth.com and click on the 250th anniversary link, or email 250th Anniversary Committee Chair Barbara Powers at 799-7875 for more information.

May 1 documentary about Cape history, bus tours, PSO concert planned for 250th

A documentary about the history of Cape Elizabeth produced by award-winning Cape Elizabeth filmmaking brothers Thomas and Peter Campbell will be screened several times from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday, May 1, in the Cape Elizabeth Town Hall Council Chambers.

The showing of “Cape Elizabeth: Time’s Flowing Tide,” commissioned by Cape Elizabeth’s 250th Anniversary Committee, will kick off a six-month celebration of the anniversary of the town’s incorporation on Nov. 1, 1765.

Film

In their documentary, Thomas Campbell, a 2010 Cape Elizabeth High School graduate, and Peter, a 2012 CEHS alumnus, include hundreds of photos from Cape Elizabeth Historic Preservation Society archives. The film showcases the early years of Cape Elizabeth and features photos of people involved in the development of the town and landmarks.

The film concludes with interviews with members of families who have lived in town for generations.

Film audiences will have a chance to see the earliest known photograph of Portland Head Light, photos of Fort Williams when the garrisons were still intact, and photographs of early settlements on Richmond Island and in the Spurwink area.

Films by the Campbell brothers, who own Smurfh film company, swept the 2013 and 2014 Portland 48 Hour Film Project, and they also have won honors at the Four Minute Film Festival, the PORTopera FILM-fest, and Film Chowda, Maine’s college film festival. Light refreshments from The Good Table Restaurant, C-Salt Gourmet Market, The Local Buzz, and the Cookie Jar Pastry Shop, will be offered along with complimentary bookmarks listing the schedule of anniversary events.

Street banners

Starting May 1, celebratory street banners will be displayed throughout Town Center and down Scott Dyer Road in front of the schools.
