'A dream that's been a long time waiting to be realized'

By Patricia McCarthy

For Cape Elizabeth resident Sergio Lizano, the only hard part about becoming an American was the very long wait to become a citizen.

Growing up in Costa Rica, his parents sent him to a bilingual school (English and Spanish), where he took classes in U.S. history and wondered about what it would be like to visit the United States.

He started dating his wife, Eida – whom he had known since first grade – while they were both seniors in high school. They went on to the University of Costa Rica in San Jose, where he earned a degree in microbiology and then conducted research as a licensed microbiologist and clinical chemist. She studied agricultural sciences and became an agronomist.

They married in 1989, and less than a year later, moved to New Orleans, where Lizano was able to earn his Ph.D. at Louisiana State University.

"When I first had the chance to come to the United States, it felt like a part of me belonged here," he said. "I felt very connected to the whole society in general. I thought then that if I had a chance, I would like to be an American."

Part of the requirement of his government scholarship, however, was that he return to his country after his studies, which he did in 1995, working as an associate professor at the University of Costa Rica's School of Medicine. There, he did research to analyze toxins and try to find antidotes to venomous snake bites. Venomous snakes are a big —see CITIZEN, page 18

NATURALIST'S CORNER

Much going on outside around Cape this time of year

By Erika Carlson Rhile,
Cape Elizabeth Land Trust
Education Committee chair

Naturalist John Muir said, "Everybody needs beauty as well as bread, places to play in and pray in, where nature may heal and give strength to body and soul."

In periodic articles, I hope to inspire you and your family to get outside and learn more about nature. Here's what's happening in our backyard now and coming up:

- Many bird species are looking for seed to fuel their migrations. We just heard a very active barred owl on the Greenbelt Trail in Winnick Woods this past week before sunset.
- Watch out: Mice start moving indoors now!
- You may still see garter snakes basking in the sun, but soon they will move underground to share a winter nest.
- Sirius, the dog star, can be seen twinkling blue and red at dawn.
- Take a look up above the Big and Little Dipper on Oct. 7 at nightfall – you may see a handful of languid shooting stars for about an hour originating from the constellation Draco.
- The full hunter's moon will rise at sunset Oct. 18.

Have you seen Jack-o-Lantern mushrooms? They're bright orange and quite poisonous, but you can look at them at night for a mini-Halloween science experiment. The gills will glow eerily with a luminescence that can last up to two days.

Planning Board OKs revised plan for Rudy's

By Wendy Derzawiec

The old Rudy's is gone. Construction on the new Rudy's, with indoor and outdoor seating, improved access and better parking, should begin this fall.

With an amended site plan in hand, Rudy's of the Cape owner Paul Woods expects to start rebuilding the former restaurant and convenience store within the next 30 to 60 days, architect Pat Carroll told members of the Planning Board on Sept. 17.

"We're all pretty excited about this," said Carroll, who was before the board to ask for minor modifications to the building footprint.

"By springtime, the new Rudy's should be open," Carroll said.

A plan for Woods to raze the building at 517 Ocean House Road and replace it with a new, 80-seat restaurant, with apartment space on the second floor, was approved last October.

The board on Sept. 17 approved the revised plan that adds two rear bump outs totaling 70 square feet.

The change involves moving a sewer line and easement, something the Town Council approved at its September meeting pending site-plan approval by the Planning Board.

The bump outs will accommodate expanded oven and dishwashing space, Carroll said.

The amended plan also reduces the size of the second phase of the project, an adjacent 1,250-square-foot retail building, to 1,240 square feet.

Rudy's of the Cape, being demolished on Sept. 17. The restaurant will be rebuilt this winter.

The old Rudy's was demolished the day of the Planning Board meeting. "School buses were stopping. They were handing out bricks, sort of souvenir bricks," said Carroll.

"So, there's the beginnings of something great about to happen here," he said.

Board wants more proof of rights to paper street

In other matters, the Planning Board ruled an application to turn Elizabeth Road, a "paper street" in Shore Acres, into a private road was incomplete because the applicant, Stephanie Boggs, did not demonstrate sufficient rights to the road.

Many thanks for above-and-beyond volunteer service

The Cape Courier thanks Cape resident Jeff Hewett for delivering extra copies of the paper to local businesses for the past 10 years. Jeff, who works for The Courier's printer, Alliance Press in Brunswick, has dutifully and cheerfully done this volunteer job without fail.

Please welcome Cape resident Tracy Northrup, who kindly volunteered to take over where Jeff left off.

We greatly appreciate their help!

Outgoing councilor Governali impressed with MacAuslan

Cape Elizabeth is fortunate to have extremely talented, hardworking and creative residents, willing to donate their time and energy to public service.

Martha MacAuslan embodies these characteristics. I am eager to support her for Town Council and believe that Cape Elizabeth residents would be well served to have Martha working for us in this capacity.

Since the spring I've had the good fortune of working with Martha on the library committee and of getting to know her for the first time. I've been very impressed by her leadership of the committee, her hard work, dedication, diligence and inclusiveness.

She's been very effective in keeping the committee on task and maintaining forward momentum toward our deadline, all while encouraging the contributions of everyone on the committee. She has assiduously avoided imposing her views on the committee and has not carried any pre-existing biases into our work.

In my tenure on the council, I've observed the traits that make an effective town councilor. These include: being a good listener; a dedication to arriving at a reasonable solution in a reasonable period of time; honesty, integrity, curiosity and a spirit of cooperation with other councilors, a willingness to compromise for the greater good, and an ability to work well with others even if they don't agree with you.

Martha has evidenced all of these traits as I've worked with her, and I'm convinced she will be an excellent town councilor for all of us. Please consider voting for Martha MacAuslan in November.

As to much-maligned chair at Swap Shop, there are two sides to every story

This photo accompanied a recent letter to the editor criticizing residents for leaving unwanted junk at the Swap Shop instead of properly disposing of it.

The Saga of the 1930 Boudoir Chair

Someone loved that chair at one time. Brought it to the Swap Shop so another person could see how lovely it once was and show them how it could look again.

The basic wood frame I bet was made of hard wood and could be utilized again. Where some saw a wall of shame, I see a work in progress.

Khalidi 'practical, worldly, perceptive, successful'

As the election for Town Council approaches, I ask that you consider Imad Khalidi for one of the open seats. Imad has resided in Cape Elizabeth for over 14 years, and through hard work and dedication has lived the American dream by building a very successful business, Auto Europe. He has already given back to this community in so many ways.

Imad's first priority is to ensure the well-being of our excellent schools. As he says, "We must invest time and resources in the future of Cape's youngest citizens while using tax dollars wisely."

He believes our green space and farmland must be protected, and he will work to preserve the beautiful, rural feeling we all cherish in our town. He hopes to protect our lower- and fixed-income citizens, believing that these families built our town and should not be taxed out of it.

In his business, Imad recruits and trains young adults, teaching them important life skills for the job market and helping them to become employable, responsible adults.

He cares deeply about the next generation and wants to keep this community a safe, nurturing, vibrant place for our children to grow and thrive in.

Imad is practical, worldly, perceptive and successful. As a member of the Town Council, he will work collaboratively to ensure that Cape Elizabeth continues to be a wonderful place to raise a family and that its unique qualities will endure for future generations. Please join me in supporting Imad Khalidi for Town Council in November.

Hubbs would 'bring a new perspective' to board

We have had the good fortune of sharing many varied experiences with Susana Measelle Hubbs and her family over the past several years.

To know Susana is to know that she possesses many strengths, including creativity, perceptiveness, intelligence, unbounded energy and enthusiasm.

Susana is dedicated to family (she has three children in the Cape Elizabeth school system), friends, and community. She will ensure that the children of Cape Elizabeth continue to receive a high-quality education.

Susana is a talented artist and her background in art therapy with children will bring a new perspective to the School Board.

She will be open-minded, deliberative, and sensitive to the needs of students, teachers and taxpayers.

Susana's natural talent at consensus building will be an asset in our ongoing pursuit of excellence for our local school system.

Please join us in voting for Susana Measelle Hubbs for School Board.

Respectfully,

Jennifer Bailey, Town Councilor
Jamie Wagner, former Councilor Sara Lennon, Paul Lennon

Trail users seeing dog poop, trash ask residents to preserve condition of preserved open land

The Greenbelt and Cape Elizabeth Land Trust trails are a great resource but are becoming an example of the "Tragedy of the Commons" described by Peter Senge in his book, "The Fifth Discipline," "where a common resource eventually gets depleted/destroyed from excessive usage."

We like seeing people walking, running, skiing, foraging and biking the trails. However, with increased usage, large volumes of dog excrement have arrived, too.

Sometimes it is neatly collected in plastic baggies and left for "somebody" to pick up (!). The wet trails used by mountain bikers are showing substantial erosion.

Wrappers from energy bars are pretty common as well.

Some property owners abutting the trails use the areas closest to the trails (and farthest from their houses) to dump their dog refuse, old plastic hoses and whatever they do not want to see or smell.

We would like to appeal to all trail users and abutters to respect the trails and leave them the same way they found them.

One dog dump is not a problem; dozens of dogs "doing their thing" is a pile of problems and a potent disease vector. Also, if you use plastic bags, please collect them; nobody else will.

In wet areas, mountain biking should simply be avoided; trail maintenance needs to address erosion problems. Of course it goes without saying, everyone should carry out their (and their dog's) refuse.

Let's make sure that we not only preserve open land, but also preserve its condition to ensure long-term enjoyment of our Cape environment.

Possible wireless facility at water tank in Shore Acres subject of Oct. 3 meeting

Representatives from Verizon Wireless and the Portland Water District will hold a public information meeting on Oct. 3 to discuss a proposed wireless telecommunication facility at the existing decommissioned PWD water tank at 11 Avon Road.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at Town Hall.

Verizon has been looking into locating a new facility in Cape Elizabeth to address a gap in cell phone coverage in town, says attorney Scott Anderson. He explained that Verizon is hoping to erect antennas atop the existing tank that would be hidden behind panels painted to match the tank.

The other component of the project would be construction of an equipment shelter to hold signaling equipment. It would be built to look like a single-story shed with a pitched roof and shingles.

Information about the design of the project and anticipated improvement in local cell coverage will be discussed, and representatives will be available to answer questions and get feedback.

At the meeting, copies of engineering drawings and photo simulations of the proposed design will be available.

Paper-shredding opportunity set for Oct. 19

The Recycling Committee will host a paper-shredding event from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19 at the Recycling Center.

There will be a limit of three boxes per vehicle and the event is limited to Cape Elizabeth residents.

Members of the Recycling Committee will be on hand that day to provide promotional items and answer any questions about the town's recycling program.

The shredding will be done by Without a Trace Mobile Shredding, Inc. of Scarborough.

Stonegate Trails: Now more than 100 acres of forest, wetlands

This is a continuing series of articles on the greenbelt system of open space and trails located in Cape Elizabeth.

These trails are constructed and maintained by the Town of Cape Elizabeth Conservation Commission, an all-volunteer, seven-member board that reports to the Town Council and is dedicated to the preservation and the promotion of access to the public open spaces of Cape Elizabeth.

The commission meets on the second Tuesday of each month in the Town Hall and the public is always welcome.

The town of Cape Elizabeth owns more than 1,100 acres of open space. Much of this land is accessible to the public via 24-plus miles of greenbelt trails.

Look for town greenbelt signs at all trailheads and also throughout the trail system to help you navigate your way on and through the trails.

The Stonegate Trails are a collection of trails located north of Robinson Woods.

With the acquisition of the remaining ownership rights in Loveitt Woods by the Town Council this summer, the Stonegate Trails now cover more than 100 acres of preserved forest and wetland.

Access points to the trail network include Dyer Pond Road near its intersection with Shore Road, the end of Dyer Pond Road, the Robinson Woods trail connection, Rock Crest Drive, Stonegate Road, Locksley Road and Shore Road just north of the path crossing across from Fort Williams.

The trails are wooded, with moderate to hilly terrain, and include several bridges that cross streams and wetlands.

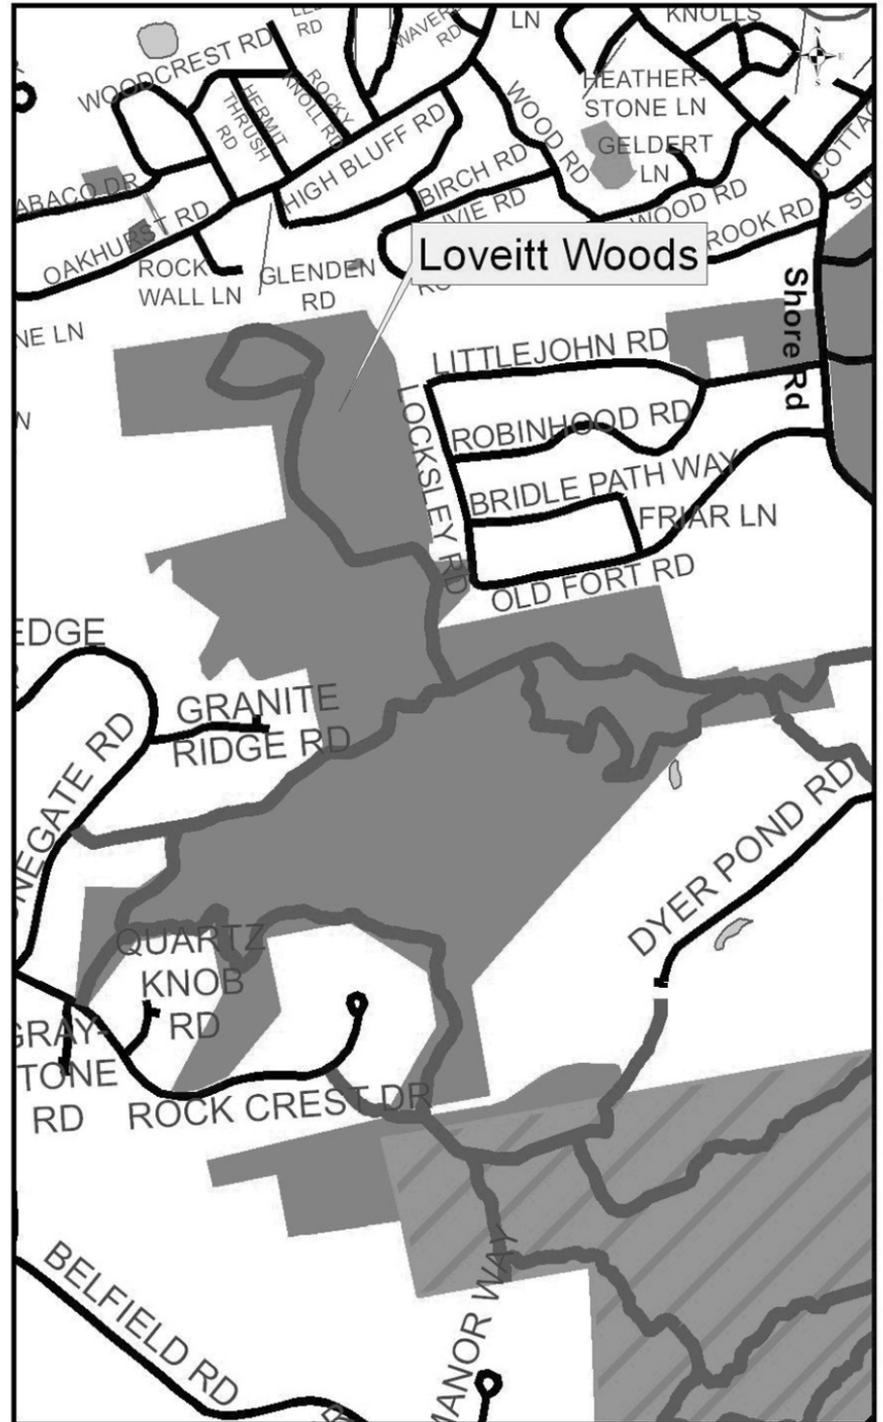

As the leaves start to change, these trails should provide an excellent opportunity to enjoy the colors of autumn.

The majority of trails on the greenbelt trail system are multiuse trails intended for a wide variety of recreational purposes including walking, mountain biking, and on certain sections horseback riding.

With the exception of a few trails that allow snowmobile travel in winter, including portions of the Great Pond Trail, no motorized travel is allowed on any portions of the greenbelt trail system.

Dog walkers are required to remove waste from the immediate vicinity of the trails.

A complete description of the entire greenbelt trail system, including trails description, maps and allowed uses can be found on the town website at www.capeelizabeth.com under "Most Viewed" and "Maps."

Stonegate Trails offer a great way to enjoy the colors and calm of fall.

UNE honors Cape's Baker for achievements

Cape Elizabeth resident Eleanor Baker, co-founder and managing principal of Baker Newman Noyes, an accounting and consulting firm in Portland, was among those honored Sept. 17 with the University of New England's 52nd annual Deborah Morton Award. The award, first presented in 1961, was the first annual award in Maine to honor the achievements of women, specifically those who have achieved high distinction in their careers and public service or whose leadership in civic, cultural or social causes has been exceptional.

Eleanor Baker

More than 180 Maine women in the past 52 years have received the award, including Margaret Chase Smith, Cape Elizabeth native and Olympic gold medalist Joan Benoit Samuelson, artist Dahlov Ipcar and former Maine First Lady Mary Herman. This year's inductee also included Anne Lynch, executive director of The Center for Grieving Children; Lois Galgay Reckitt, executive director of Family Crisis Services; and Barbara Vereault of the Penobscot Community Health Center.

The award was named in memory of Deborah Morton of Round Pond, valedictorian of the 1879 class of the Westbrook Seminary – the forerunner of Westbrook College, which merged with the University of New England in 1996. Morton was a teacher, dean, linguist, historian and prominent Portland civic leader whose service to Westbrook College spanned more than 60 years.

Baker earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Maine and a law degree from the University of Maine School of Law. She also holds an LL.M. in taxation from Boston University School of Law and the Personal Financial Specialist designation.

She is a trustee at the University of Maine system and with the University of Maine School of Law Foundation. She also serves as a trustee at Maine Public Broadcasting Network and a trustee and finance chair for the executive committee of the Portland Symphony Orchestra.

Baker also is the recipient of the 2013 American Heart Association's Crystal Heart Award for her continued support and promotion of the organization's mission.

Cape's Family History Center has new hours; volunteers needed to help out

The Family History Center, which offers resources to help people research and study their genealogy and family history, has new hours. The center is now open Tuesdays from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturdays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Access to the center, which is sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is free and open to all, not just church members. The center is a branch of the Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah, which has branches all over the world.

At the Cape Elizabeth branch, people can get access to genealogical records through the Internet or a microfilm loan program. Microfiche and microfilm readers are available, and people who use them can print or digitally save documents. The center also has a film collection and a small library of books, including the "Maine Families in 1790" series, which documents families living in Maine at the time of the 1790 census. The branch offers free access to ancestry.com as well as other search sites that usually require paid subscriptions.

The staff consists entirely of volunteers, and more volunteers are needed in order to keep the center open during all of the new hours. Anyone interested in volunteering should contact John Switzer at 799-1829. Training will be provided for volunteers, who do not need any previous knowledge of genealogy and can work on their own family histories while volunteering.

The center is located at 29 Ocean House Road.

Stepping into the Sesquicentennial

Edward I. Woodbury

A Cape Courier series by Cape Elizabeth resident Ellen Van Fleet follows the Civil War through the eyes of people who lived in Cape Elizabeth 150 years ago, when the Civil War was in its third year. Using Portland author Paul Ledman's book, "A Maine Town Responds," as the main guide, the series includes both short entries from the Portland Transcript, a newspaper, and letters from a local soldier who served on the western front. Items from the Portland Transcript and from soldiers' letters are reported verbatim.

Tom Thumb, who was born Charles Sherwood Stratton but gained fame as Tom Thumb under circus pioneer P.T. Barnum, married Lavinia Warren in February 1863, attended by best man, George Washington Morrison – or "Commodore Nutt" – and maid of honor Minnie Warren, Lavinia's sister. Barnum taught Stratton how to sing, dance, mime and impersonate famous people, and Stratton made his first tour at age five. He stood 2 feet 11 inches tall.

Oct. 3, 1863 – Our cavalry had an engagement with the rebel cavalry at Madison Court House [Virginia] on the 22nd and whipped them handsomely. [Portland Transcript]

An army of deserters – On the 1st of July there were 92,789 deserters from all the armies. Since the establishment of the Bureau of Deserters, 5,000 have been returned to their regiments. [Portland Transcript]

John Morgan is to be held for exchange for Gen. Neal Dow. [Portland Transcript]

Notwithstanding we are engaged in civil war, our country continues to hold out extraordinary inducements to emigrants. The Canadian papers are mourning over the emigration of mechanics and laboring men from that county to this. [Portland Transcript]

The Lilliputians carried the city by storm on Monday and Tuesday. Their levees were crowded, day and evening, and multitudes followed Tom Thumb's coach through the streets, and gazed after Com. Nutt on horseback. Tom Thumb has quite the air of a married man, and his wife is a very matronly looking little lady. ... Tom Thumb's fortune is estimated at $250,000, and ... he certainly has quite the air of a monied man. [Portland Transcript]

A court martial, of which Col. Burnham, of the 6th Maine, is president, is now in session in this city for the trial of deserters. [Portland Transcript]

The Portland Company, which is now engaged in finishing about 50 Dahlgren 11-inch guns, gives employment to 300 workmen. [Portland Transcript]

It is getting to be the fashion in England for women to smoke. [Portland Transcript]

October 10, 1863 The yellow fever has made its appearance in the fleet at New Orleans and Pensacola. [Portland Transcript]

The new volume of poems by Longfellow, entitled "Tales of a Wayside Inn," will be published ... on the 20th of November. It will be issued simultaneously in America, England and Germany. [Portland Transcript]

Four of the big 15-inch guns – 500 pounders – are now mounted at Fort Scammel, and three more are to be mounted this fall. We learn that there will be six of these guns mounted on Fort Preble, some of them this season. [Portland Transcript]

Oct. 24 'Fashion Forecast' at Purpoodock in memory of Cape resident Mary Staszko

A group of Cape Elizabeth volunteers of all ages, including members of four Girl Scout troops, will present the first annual Fashion Forecast at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 24, at the Purpoodock Club.

The event, which will combine a runway show and a live auction, is planned in memory of longtime Cape resident Mary Staszko, who passed away unexpectedly in late 2012. All proceeds will benefit the nonprofit, Portland-based Preble Street. Staszko helped coordinate volunteers from St. Bartholomew Roman Catholic Parish for the Preble Street Resource Center's soup kitchen.

"Mary never forgot what it meant to have community," says organizer Ann Perrino, who owns Ann Veronica, a Shore Road boutique where Staszko worked during the holiday season.

Models, who will walk down the runway in clothing from Ann Veronica and David Woods Clothiers in Portland, will include community members Patty Grennon, Bob Macdonald, Jean Ginn Marvin, Dorothy Janick, Faith Buckley, Christy Bomba, Brenda Garrand, John Hatcher, Lisa Belisle, Omar Khalidi, Natalie Gale and more. People will be able to purchase clothes at the event.

Tickets are $100 per couple, and $50 per person, and the deadline for RSVP'ing is Oct. 18. Go to fashionforecast.org to buy tickets.

In addition to the soup kitchen, Preble Street includes drop-in centers, a food pantry, shelters, social work services, and Florence House, which provides permanent and temporary housing for chronically homeless women in Portland. Organizers of the event welcome donations to Preble Street.

CELT's silent auction to run through Nov. 3

The Cape Elizabeth Land Trust is holding an online auction of Henry Isaacs' oil painting, "Homer House from the Cliff Walk, Prout's Neck" through Nov. 3.

The Cape Elizabeth Land Trust is holding a silent auction of a painting by Maine artist, Henry Isaacs, to raise funds for the organization's "Saving Cape's Great Places" initiative.

"Homer House from the Cliff Walk, Prout's Neck," an oil painting measuring 30 inches across by 40 inches high, is available through Sunday, Nov. 3, the day of CELT's annual meeting, where the winner is expected to be announced.

Bidders go to www.capelandtrust.org/auction/, where auction details and images of the painting are posted. The painting also is on view at CELT's office.

Bidders will be notified if their bids have been exceeded, and bidding will conclude at the annual meeting, where attendees will be able to enter bids electronically up to the time of the auction's close.

Isaacs lives and works on Little Cranberry Island in Islesford. He has painted at sites throughout the United States and abroad, including Europe and Africa. For more than 30 years, his paintings have focused on the natural and inhabited landscape. In the 1970s and 1980s, he often painted figure poses over a period of many weeks.

The recipient of numerous grants and awards, Isaacs received degrees in painting and printmaking at Rhode Island School of Design in Providence and at the Slade School of Fine Art at University College London. He has taught in art schools in England and Italy, as well as in the U.S., where he taught for many years at Massachusetts College of Art in Boston. His work is represented by Gleason Fine Art, Islesford Dock Gallery, and Warm Springs Gallery in Virginia.

"We are very grateful to Henry Isaacs for his generosity in making this auction possible," said CELT Executive Director Chris Franklin. "His love of nature, so evident in his work, complements CELT's commitment to permanently protect natural landscapes for the public's benefit."

Read for the Record Day Oct. 3 brings millions together, reading 'Otis'

Thomas Memorial Library will participate in this year's "Read for the Record Day," presented by Jumpstart in partnership with the Pearson Foundation.

"Read for the Record" is a campaign that brings together millions of Americans to celebrate literacy by breaking the world record for reading the same book on the same day. This year, Oct. 3 is the official day, and this year's book selection is "Otis," by Loren Long. "Otis" is a picture book that tells the story of a special friendship between Otis, a small tractor, and a young and timid cow. Here's the schedule of the library's events for the day:

9 a.m.-8:30 p.m. – "Drop in and Read": A copy of the "Otis" will be available for parents and kids to read together all day long.

10:30-11:15 a.m. – As part of his monthly program, Jud Caswell will read the book, "Otis," along with his original musical accompaniment, during Musical Story Hour.

2-2:30 p.m., – Special preschool story and craft time, in which kids will hear the story and make a simple Otis craft project.

Everyone who reads or listens to "Otis" will become part of the library's official tally to submit to Jumpstart, and children will be presented with a certificate acknowledging their participation in this year's attempt to break the record. Last year, Jumpstart broke the world record by reading with 2,385,305 adults and children around the world on Read for the Record Day.

Book sale shifts Duquette location for Oct. 17 session

"World Music with Rob Duquette" will take place from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 17, but due to the Fall Book & Bake Sale, the program will take place in the Community Room at Community Services for this month only.

Oct. 24 book group about 'Founding Mothers'

The library's evening book group will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 24 to discuss "Founding Mothers: the Women Who Raised Our Nation," by Cokie Roberts.

If you'd like to participate in the discussion and need a copy of the book, please contact Kevin Goody at the library, kgoody@thomas.lib.me.us.

Cape's Hawkes displays her works at TML this month

Rebecca Jane Hawkes of Cape Elizabeth and Sebago Lake will display oils and several mixed-media works at the Thomas Memorial Library in October.

A graduate of the Art Program at Gorham State College, Hawkes taught at Westbrook High School from 1966 to 1982 and Nathan Clifford School in Portland from 1988 to 1994.

She was a student of the late Roger Deering of Portland and Kennebunkport and Alfred Chadbourne of Yarmouth and completed courses at Westbrook Junior College, the Rockland Museum and the Portland School of Art.

"My spirit finds peace in nature, and it is there I emotionally connect with a multitude of subject possibilities and conditions waiting to be explored," Hawkes said.

Second annual Star Wars Reads Day is Oct. 5

The library will be participating in the second annual Star Wars Reads Day on Saturday, October 5, with events from 2 to 4 p.m.

Kids will be able to make a Light Saber to use in a Clone Trooper game, make their own Jedi apprentice robe, play Star Wars carnival games for prizes, break open a Death Star Pinata, take pictures in the library's Land Speeder, and join a team to compete to free Han Solo from carbonite. Kids and grown-ups are invited to come in costume for this afternoon celebrating all things Star Wars!

Details can be found on the library's website.

Rubin to discuss 'The Last of the Doughboys'

Author Richard Rubin will discuss his book, "The Last of the Doughboys: The Forgotten Generation and Their Forgotten World War," at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22.

When Rubin began working on the book 10 years ago, 85 years after the armistice, it took him months to find just one living American veteran of World War I. But then he found another. And another. Eventually he managed to find dozens, ages 101 to 113, and interview them. All are gone now, but Rubin has recorded their remarkable stories in his book.

Rubin will share those stories and discuss the process of researching and writing his book at the library's free event.

A book signing will follow. Details about the book, including a video interview with Rubin, and links to an NPR interview as well as interviews with some of the veterans in the book, can be found on the library's website. Rubin also is the author of "Confederacy of Silence: A True Tale of the New Old South."

NEW REGULATIONS TO THE MORTGAGE LENDING PROCESS

... take effect 1/10/14!

These new rules could have a major impact on whether a buyer will be approved for a mortgage!

Lenders now typically require a monthly house payment of no more than 28%, and a total monthly debt of 36% or lower, for a maximum monthly debt to income ratio of 64%.

Under the new rules, the total monthly debt to income ratio cannot exceed 43%!

If you have been thinking about purchasing a new home, now may be the time. You might qualify now, but may not under the new rules.

If you are considering selling a home, now may also be the time, as the number of qualified buyers looking for a new home may be fewer.

For more information about how these new rules may affect your real estate goals, please contact me.

A group of 12 kids raised nearly $450 for the hospital through a car wash and a coin drive, and recently they got to deliver the check and tour the hospital.

‘Scarecrow on Town’ posts available at farms; vote on favorites at Oct. # Harvest Festival

“Buck(aneer),” a scarecrow entered into the PCPA’s 2012 ‘Scarecrows on the Town’ contest, holds a sign reading, “The Buck(aneer) stops here!” Members of Cross Hill’s Richard family created and erected the scarecrow at the corner of Cross Hill and Steeplebush roads to honor bus driver, Daniel “Buck” Spaulding.

By Wendy Keeler

Scarecrows may proliferate again in Cape Elizabeth this October, thanks to members of the Pond Cove Parents Association, who are organizing the third annual “Scarecrows on the Town” contest.

Once again, residents and business people are encouraged to create their own scarecrows to display in yards, neighborhoods and outside businesses around town.

Scarecrow posts are available for $5 apiece at Jordan’s and Alewife’s farms. To enter the contest, people must complete a name-and-address form to send with $5 to Jenny Green, 7 Misty Lane, Cape Elizabeth 04107, or drop off at the Pond Cove School’s front office. Forms can be downloaded at www.pcpa.org.

Immediately after people put up their crows, they should snap a high-resolution picture and email it to threegreenpages@gmail.com.

Photos will be posted at the Harvest Festival at Pond Cove on Saturday, Oct. 19. There, people will get to vote on the scarecrows in the following categories: spooky, whimsical/fun, traditional, Cape spirit, business, and international, the 2013 theme. The festival, which will be held from 4 to 8 p.m., will include indoor and outdoor games, a haunted house, and a harvest meal.

“Last year was an enormous, fun community event and we hope to see everyone again this year,” said Leonardi, one of the organizers. “We had many community members with no school-aged children attend just to vote on the scarecrows, and we’re looking forward to seeing the new scarecrows this year.”

But crow creators don’t have to enter their scarecrows into the contest. Some Cape residents just enjoy displaying ones they have made in the past or making new ones to join the others around town.

Contact Leonardi at aleonardi.pcpa@gmail.com or 409-7566 for more information about the contest or about the Harvest Festival.

Five Cape Elizabeth High School seniors named 2014 National Merit semifinalists

Five Cape Elizabeth High School seniors have been named National Merit Scholarship Competition semifinalists for their performance on the PSAT – the Preliminary SAT – which they took as juniors in October 2012.

The students are Trevor Ewald, the son of Julie and Jon Ewald; John Hall, the son of Jenny and William Hall; Kevin Hare, the son of Karen and Mark Hare; Matthew Reale-Hatem, the son of Janice Reale and Peter Hatem; and Nicholas Shedd, the son of Claudia and Jeff Shedd.

The students will continue in the competition for National Merit Scholarship awards to be offered in the spring.

About 1.5 million juniors in 22,000 high schools entered the 2014 National Merit Scholarship Program by taking the PSAT, which served as an initial screen of program entrants.

The nationwide pool of semifinalists, which represents less than 1 percent of U.S. high school seniors, includes the highest-scoring entrants in each state. The number of semifinalists in a state is proportional to the state’s percentage of the national total of graduating seniors.

Cape Nazarene church convention Oct. 12-13

The Cape Elizabeth Church of the Nazarene will host a "Faith Promise Missions Convention" on Saturday, October 12, and Sunday, Oct. 13. The conventions offer people opportunities to learn about, celebrate, and support the work of the Church of the Nazarene around the world.

That weekend, the Rev. Gary Hartke, who is the global director of Nazarene Youth International, which is based in Lenexa, Kan., will offer his perspective on the Church of the Nazarene's global missions, especially as they relate to youth. At one time, Hartke served as youth pastor at the South Portland Church of the Nazarene.

Hartke will lead sessions at 6 p.m. on Oct. 12, and at 9:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. on Oct. 13. An ice cream social is planned at 7 p.m. on Oct. 12, and a fellowship dinner at noon on Oct. 13.

All are welcome to attend any or all of the sessions. Contact the Rev. Jon Twitchell at pastorjon@capenazarene.org or 799-3692 for more information.

St. Alban's plans wellness program on Saturday, Oct. 19

St Alban's Episcopal Church plans "Living Compass," a wellness program that aims to build holistic balance in the lives of individuals and families, from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Oct. 19. The program, which was developed by the Episcopal Church, will include a mini-retreat and workshop. All are invited to attend.

Living Compass combines coaching, education and support. Participants at the mini-retreat will make a self-assessment of their current state of life balance and wellness. The session will explore the connection between spirituality and wellness.

"It is fundamental to our roots that we embrace God's desire for us to love with our whole self: heart, soul, strength and mind," the Rev. Tim Boggs, St. Alban's rector, said. "Living Compass should be a tool to help us do just that."

Participants should bring a brown-bag lunch. Beverages will be provided.

There is no charge, but sign-up is required. Go to www.stalbansmaine.org to register.

Annual 'Blessing of the Animals' planned Oct. 6

The Cape Elizabeth United Methodist Church will host its annual Blessing of the Animals on Sunday, Oct. 6, at 1 p.m. in the church's outdoor chapel.

Cape Methodist conducts the blessing to honor the Feast of St. Francis of Assisi, patron saint of animals and the environment.

The Rev. Ruth Morrison welcomes all animals.

In the past, the blessing was only for dogs, but last year, 30 dogs, one cat and one rabbit were blessed at the event.

All are invited to attend. The path to the outdoor chapel is at the far end of the church parking lot. The church is located at 280 Ocean House Road.

Cape Methodist to hold public supper on Oct. 5

The Cape Elizabeth United Methodist Church will host a public supper on Saturday, Oct. 5, from 4:30 to 6 p.m., featuring foods with locally grown produce and ingredients. This is the church's first public supper of the season and its annual heirloom supper.

Public suppers will be on the first Saturday of each month through late spring, except for December.

Suppers feature casseroles, beans, salads, breads and pies for dessert. The charge will be $8 for adults, $5 for children and $20 for families (two adults and children).

Take-out will be available. Go to www.ceumc.com or call 799-8396 for more information.

The church is located at 280 Ocean House Road.

In the Connect program, early middle-school students engage in activities that help them "connect their faith to their everyday lives," group leader Rev. Kelly Moughty said.

problem in Latin America, where deforestation and development have displaced the snakes and created an eco-imbalance.

During the course of his work, Lizano discovered natural inhibitors of snake toxins – “substances in snakes that make them immune to their own venom” – and established a reputation as a microbiologist, collaborating in Japan and France with fellow researchers.

That enabled him to return to the United States in 2002 as a research scientist for the Scripps Research Institute in La Jolla, Calif., where he did postdoctoral work in a different area of research – cancer biology, studying molecular mechanisms in cells. Lizano explains that the aim was to discover how certain cellular proteins work and to develop new strategies to control cancer at a molecular level by controlling its pathways.

“My employer sponsored me for a J-1 visa, which is an exchange visitor’s visa to live and work in the United States,” Lizano explains. And it applied to the rest of his family.

“This visa is given for a year and is renewable for up to three years, after which visa holders typically have to go back to their home country and work there for at least two years before being eligible to apply again. In my case, I didn’t have to do that because I applied and was granted a waiver from the government of Costa Rica. So, after a couple of years of holding this J-1 visa, I changed jobs, and my new employer (New York Medical College) sponsored me for an H1-B visa, which is essentially a temporary worker’s visa. This was significant because at this point I could initiate the process to apply for permanent residence; you can’t do that when you have a J-1 visa.”

As long as he could prove that his skills and expertise were of value, he’d be eligible for residence. As he was studying how certain bacteria cause disease, particularly flesh-eating bacteria, he had that covered.

“My permanent resident visa was granted in 2005, and one has to wait five years before applying for citizenship. The visa is valid for 10 years as long as one stays and works in the U.S. for that period.”

During that wait, in 2007 he moved his family to Maine, where he accepted a job as a research scientist in the veterinary diagnostic market at Idexx Laboratories in Westbrook.

His work there involves developing tools and products that detect diseases in livestock and poultry. For example, Lizano has helped to develop a test that can detect disease in a herd of pigs, so that producers can determine what to do to prevent the spread of the disease and other steps to take.

In choosing where to live, he and Eida, like many residents, chose Cape Elizabeth for its beauty, safety and good schools. They rented an apartment, where they lived for a year with their two sons – Alonso, now 19 and a student at Southern Maine Community College, and Arturo, 16, a junior at Cape Elizabeth High School.

Then, Lizano said, he went about life “acting like a citizen,” working, buying a house, paying taxes and making friends – while also yearning to become a U.S. citizen. He and his wife studied for the Department of Homeland Security interviews that would come, and their sons quizzed them.

“They had helped us prepare on questions of U.S. history,” said Lizano, “and they were very happy to be able to contribute to the process. It was fun.”

Citizenship came after seven years of being permanent residents. For Eida, it happened in May. They applied at the same time, but she was called first. They said they would like to have gone through the naturalization ceremony together, but are just happy to have the process complete.

For Sergio, 47, it happened on Sept. 17 – Constitution Day – along with 74 other people, representing 30 countries, from Australia to Venezuela, at a ceremony in Portland.

Lizano said he felt emotional during the administering of the Oath of Allegiance that day. “I got kind of a knot. That’s when it clicked, when you suddenly realize that so many years of waiting finally paid off. It’s a long process, and it’s a dream that’s a long time waiting to be realized. It was feelings of sudden relief and pride.”

What feels different?
 “As the days go by and it starts to sink in, I realize the biggest difference is having the right to vote. In many ways, I felt like a citizen and acted like a citizen, but now I feel I can have a voice.”

Lizano describes himself as a quiet person for whom this has been a personal journey. But he said he agreed to talk about his experience so that Cape residents would better understand what it takes to become an American.

Planning Board

Boggs is looking to change the paper street, drawn on recorded plans for Shore Acres but never constructed, into a private road to access a 4.5-acre lot she owns behind properties on Overlook Lane. The paper street abuts property owned by her husband Stephen Mette at 5 Overlook Lane.

The problem perceived by the Planning Board is that the Boggs property is not part of the original subdivision, recorded at the registry of deeds, that created the paper street.

“I think it’s the applicant’s job to have their legal counsel show us that someone with appropriate right, title and interest is making this application,” said Planning Board member Elaine Falender.

John Mitchell of Mitchell and Associates, architect representing Boggs, said that she and her husband are looking to preserve access to the property before the town’s rights in paper streets expire in 2017. Under Maine law the town has rights in paper streets, and owners of lots within the subdivision have private easement rights. In 1997 the town extended its rights in most paper streets in Cape Elizabeth, including Elizabeth Road, for 20 years.

As co-owner of the property at 5 Overlook Lane, Boggs may have rights in the paper street, but board members were not convinced those rights could be used for access to the lot behind. “I think we need to know that the legal rights are here before we actually review the (application) document,” Falender said.

There are no immediate plans to develop the lot, but Mitchell did present plans to construct the private road to town standards. He is asking for waivers of requirements for width and to adjust the grade and move the center line to avoid killing three oak trees within the right of way, he said.

The plans are required for the board to approve a private road, said Town Planner Maureen O’Meara. The new road, according to the plan, would be called Old Hayfield Road.

Married

Wendy and Paul Gallagher

Wendy Ellis and Paul Gallagher were married August 2 at the Gallagher family's cabin on Embden Pond, together with their three children, Griffin Gallager, 18; Maeve Gallagher, 15; and Lily Sproles, 9.

The groom is the son of Tom and Mary Gallagher of Cape Elizabeth, and the bride is the daughter of Elwood and Judy Ellis of China, Maine.

The couple's close friend, the Rev. Jim Peschel of Seattle, Wash., officiated at the waterfront ceremony, which included words written by the couple's children. Friends and family members from Seattle to Maine attended the weeklong event.

Wendy graduated from the University of New England in Biddeford and received her doctorate from the National College of Naturopathic Medicine, in Portland, Ore. She is a physician and the director of Tahoma Clinic in Seattle.

Paul, a member of Cape Elizabeth High School's class of 1983, graduated from Maine Maritime Academy in Castine and received a master's degree from Seattle University. He is director of project services for Tote Logistics in Seattle.

The Gallaghers live in Seattle.

Engaged

Michael Walsh and Abigail Adams are planning a Nov. 2 wedding in Portland.

Abigail Perry Adams, the daughter of Melissa Perry Adams of Palm Springs, Calif., is engaged to Michael Theodore Walsh, the son of James and Kathleen Walsh of Cape Elizabeth.

Abigail is a 2005 graduate of the College of Wooster in Wooster, Ohio, where she received a Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy, and a 2012 graduate of New England School of Law in Boston where she received her law degree. Abigail is licensed to practice law in Maine and Massachusetts and she is currently awaiting her bar results for the state of California.

Michael is a 2006 graduate of Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., where he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science. He is expected to receive his master's degree in business from Boston University in 2014.

The couple lives in San Francisco, Calif., and will wed on Saturday, Nov. 2, at the Cathedral Church of Saint Luke in Portland.

Hayden Williams, who grew up in Cape Elizabeth and is the son of Ogden and Peggy Williams, just launched Treatings, a professional platform that is the networking equivalent of online dating sites. The site is for people interested in connecting in person with professionals open to talking about their work.

Hayden Williams

"In 2012, after working as an investment banker in New York City for four years, I wanted to transition to a tech startup company. I wanted to speak with people who had made similar career switches, but I didn't personally know anyone who had," Williams said. "The only people easily identified in online searches were senior professionals who didn't have a lot of time to share their insights. So my best friend and I quit our jobs in order to build an online community of young professionals open to sharing career experiences over coffee."

The site, www.treatin.org, is free and now open in New York City. Treatings is scheduled to open in San Francisco in the next few months, and eventually the site will go nationwide, Williams said.

A 2004 graduate of Milton Academy in Milton, Mass., Hayden graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 2008 from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., where he received a bachelor's degree in economics and corporate strategy.
